
Sandra Lawson

Global Investment Research
New York

Sandra is the executive director of the Global Markets Institute (GMI), the firm's public-policy research center within Global Investment Research. She is a member of the Firmwide Conduct and Operational Risk Committee. Previously, she was the director of regulatory communications within Bank Holding Company Compliance. Prior to that, Sandra was the director of GMI, where her work focused on regulation and the role of capital markets in driving economic growth. Before joining GMI, she worked in Economics Research both in New York, where she analyzed capital markets and long-term development in the BRICs countries, and in London, where she published CEO Confidential. Sandra joined Goldman Sachs in 1997 as an equity strategist in Hong Kong. She was named managing director in 2010.

Prior to joining the firm, Sandra was an intelligence analyst at the Central Intelligence Agency, covering Chinese politics.

Sandra is a trustee of the Buckley School, a board member of the International Women's Health Coalition and a member of the Council on Foreign Relations.

Sandra earned an AB from Dartmouth College and a JD from Yale Law School.
